Established in 1936, The Raymond Group has proven itself to be an industry leader and is often the source of choice for the owner, contractor and developer. Raymond provides the qualified manpower for any project - no matter its complexity or where it's located. We are able to effectively manage projects and integrate various disciplines and subcontractors to create specialized teams of the most qualified managers, design assistants, art directors and artisans available today to ensure that what we build lives up to your vision. From vital components like budgeting and scheduling of engineering, procurement of manpower to design assistance and samples, Raymond has the capability to create superior projects.

Raymond has full service offices in Southern California, Northern California and Las Vegas, as well as project offices across the country. Each office shares vital resources with a national network, including a strong central information system, giving our clients a high degree of confidence that overall project goals can be met.

Raymond is passionate about building. Our Vision at Raymond is that we build relationships with customers by providing solutions to their challenges. We work proactively to accomplish this through dedication, capability, integrity, and teambuilding. We continually develop and strengthen these qualities by investing in our people. We have the people, experience, systems and resources needed to deliver quality that exceeds client expectations. At Raymond, we build your vision.
